Financecube signs WebService contract with

Financecube develops a new internet Web Service platform for Discretionary Asset Management and Independent Financial Advisors. The platform will be launched summer 2004.

As the first software and service provider in the European financial market Financecube will take advantage of Web Service technology as one of the main engines in the total system. We will seamlessly integrate a number of great software packages in the world to a cluster of services for our client.

Investtech has developed a complex platform for Technical Analysis and Automatic signal generator. They process signal generation on 12 000 European, US and some Asia Stock every day.

We will have a seamless integration between client portfolio and the signal generator to give our investors and their advisor state of the art analysis.
