Press Release

September 2004

Financecube signs with SAS Institute

Financecube develops a new internet platform and infrastructure for Discretionary Asset Management and Independent Financial Advisors (IFA) in Europe and USA. The platform will be launched late 2004.

As the first software and service provider in the European financial market Financecube will take advantage of Web Service technology as one of the main engines in the total system. We will seamlessly integrate a number of great software packages to a cluster of services for our customers. We give our customer a “best of breed” approach.

SAS Institute is the preferred Business Intelligence (BI) software provider for most large companies in the world.

SAS leverages the investments you've already made in operational systems and applications by adding a layer of intelligence you can't get anywhere else. Here, from one source, is everything you need to implement a complete intelligence strategy throughout your enterprise. Unlike vendors who can only offer disconnected point solutions, SAS brings you a complete suite of award-winning solutions built on an integrated Intelligence Platform designed to give you the ultimate reward: The Power to Know®.

We will seamlessly integrate SAS and FinanceCube information to give IFA's, financial managers and intermediaries a new world of information technology support at a price they can afford and with a workload they can handle.
